

Our tri-blend shirts are constructed of organic, U.S. cotton; polyester produced from recycled plastic bottles (6 bottles per tri-blend shirt that never make it to a landfill); and modal, a fiber from sustainably-farmed beech trees.

Our cotton is grown in Texas, and spun, knitted, dyed and finished in the Carolinas, funding American jobs and reducing shipping pollution.

ECO-RESPONSIBLE

We're putting our collective expertise and purchasing power to work, educating the market, while offering screen printers and consumers a better option.

Our high-quality blank t-shirts are produced at a competitive price, making it easier to make a socially and environmentally-kind choice.

PREMIUM QUALITY

Safe and comfortable working conditions are a fundamental right.

Allmade is dedicated to a transparent supply chain and ethical production standards. The LIFE facility located on the outskirts of Port-au-Prince, Haiti is BetterWork and WRAP certified and is open to visitors.

Makers earn more than 3x the going rate for like jobs in the area, an amount carefully calculated to support living expenses of a Haitian household.

ETHICAL PRODUCTION

Shirts you can feel good about.

We believe you care about how your shirts are made.

Our shirts are made from recycled bottles & sustainable natural fibers, and produced in Haiti by makers earning a living wage, supporting the Global Orphan Project.

Tri-Blends

Allmade's unique and proprietary Tri-blend is built from 50% Repreve® polyester from recycled plastic; 25% organic, US grown, combed, ring spun cotton; and 25% TENCEL™ Modal. These sustainable fibers combine to create a soft, flexible, and smooth fabric which looks good plain and holds a great print. Each shirt uses 6 recycled poly water bottles and all fabric is spun, knitted, processed and finished in the USA. Shirts are cut and sewn in Haiti.
